Rancho Buena Vista Adobe

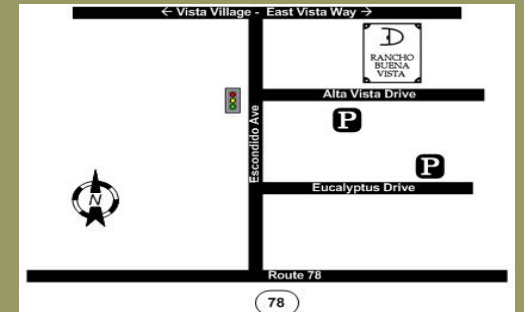

The Rancho Buena Vista Adobe is one of the best preserved of the San Diego County land grant Ranchos. Originally one of six ranchos claimed by Mission San Luis Rey, Rancho Buena Vista was deeded to Felipe Subria, a Luiseno Indian in 1845 by Mexico's governor, Pio Pico. In 1989 the City of Vista purchased the property and its current land of 1.9 acres and opened the Rancho to the public.

The entire facility imparts a sense of history and an aura of the romance of Early California. The home is a single story adobe brick hacienda and is furnished with antiques appropriate to the time period.

Furnishings reflect many of the historically significant people who owned the home from 1855 to 1930. Rancho owners have included a Cavalry Private, a Hollywood film producer and his silent screen star wife, and several prominent settlers of early Vista. The rancho has been maintained with no significant alterations to the architecture and looks much the way it did over 150 years ago.

Please join us at this marvelous piece of history right in the center of Vista.

One of the best kept secrets of Vista and San Diego County!

The City of Vista

The City of Vista Mission

The City of Vista mission for the Rancho Buena Vista Adobe is to preserve the historic portion of the site and to interpret it's significance to the City of Vista and the region; to encourage and support ongoing education projects using "hands-on" learning; and to encourage public usage of the grounds through facility rentals.

"Adobe Days"

Adobe Days educational program is a hands-on social studies experience designed to coincide with the third and fourth grade history curriculum.

The Rancho Buena Vista Adobe also offers history programs to scout groups and day camps. Adobe Camp is offered to children ages 7 to 11 during the summer.
